UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, ss:

The President of the United States of America, to the honorable the judges of the circuit court of the United States for the District of Columbia, holden in and for the county of Washington, greeting:

Whereas, in a certain suit in the said circuit court between the United States, plaintiffs, and Andrew M. Laub, defendant, which suit was removed to the Supreme Court of the United States by virtue of a writ of error, agreeably to the act of Congress in such case made and provided, a diminution of the record and proceedings of said cause has been suggested, to wit: That the clerk has omitted to return to this court, with the record transmitted by him in obedience to the writ of error issued in said cause, the following papers and documents, which, it appears from the record, ought to constitute a part of the same:

1. Statement from the Bank (U. S.,) referred to in page 8, printed record.
2. Official report from Comptroller, &c., p. 9.
3. Accounts between plaintiff and defendant, from January, 1831, till the institution of this suit, with the vouchers, &c., accompanying the same, and a statement from the Register, of June 2, 1836, referred to pp. 9 and 10, printed record.
4. Accounts showing payment by Reed, p. 10.
5. Document No. 22, p. 10.

You, therefore, are hereby commanded that, searching the record and proceedings in said cause, you forthwith certify what omissions you shall find to the said Supreme Court of the United States, so that you have the same, together with this writ, before the said Supreme Court forthwith.

Witness, the honorable Roger B. Taney, Chief Justice of said Supreme Court, the second Monday of January, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and thirty-seven.

WM. THOS. CARROLL,
Cl'k of the Sup. Court of the U. S.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA, County of Washington, to wit:

In pursuance of a writ of dimunition issued from the Supreme Court of the United States, in the case of the United States against Andrew M. Laub, directed to the judges of the circuit court of the United States, for the District of Columbia, holden in, and for, the county of Washington, and hereto annexed, the said circuit court have searched the record and proceedings in said cause, and the following omissions are certified to the said Supreme Court, viz:

"No. 1. Statement from the Bank (U. S.,) referred to in page 8, printed record.
No. 3. Accounts between plaintiff and defendant, from January, 1831, till the institution of this suit, with the vouchers, &c., accompanying the same referred to, pp. 9 and 10, printed record.
No. 4. Accounts showing payments by Reed, p. 10.
No. 5. Document No. 22, p. 10."

And the omission No. 2, being an official report from Comptroller, &c., p. 9, as suggested in the said writ, is not certified to the said Supreme Court, because the same is not on file among the papers in the said cause, and cannot be obtained on application to both the said parties.

In testimony whereof, I hereunto subscribe my name and affix, the seal of the said circuit court, at the city of Washington, this 17th day of November, 1837.

W. BRENT, Clerk. [SEAL.]

Statement No. 69,128.

Remarks relating to an account presented at the office of the First Auditor of the Treasury Department, on the 2d January, 1836, by Andrew M. Laub.

Andrew M. Laub, late agent for paying certain expenses of a contingent nature for the Treasury Department.

Contingent expenses per U. No. 6,577, dated March 8, 1833, - - - - - -		2,000 00
		$2,003 37
To balance due from him per report No. 65,479:
As agent for paying for alterations and improvements of the Ex'tive buildings, per report No. 60,338		600 00

As agent for expenses for enclosing grounds of Treasury Department, per report No. 61,338 -	3 16	—7,769 25
Amounting in the whole to dollars, -		11,855 86

Againts these debits he claims the following sums, alleged to have been paid by him which do not appear to have been included in any accounts heretofore settled with him at the Treasury, viz:

	$1,891 41
And if this sum of $1,891 41 be admitted to the credit of Mr. Laub, it will still leave a balance due from him to the United States amounting to - - -	$9,964 45
And as they are not admitted, the whole amount remains to his debit on the books of the Treasury -	$11,855 86

Which balance consists of the following items, charged in his account herewith, and being wholly unsupported by vouchers of any kind, are, of course, disallowed, viz:

Amount credited in said account "as overdrawn for salaries of secretaries, clerks, and messengers, $2,68." This credit is improperly brought into this account, having no reference whatever to it. It may nevertheless not be improper to remark, that it is the amount of sundry small sums paid to the clerks less than were charged in his account for those salaries for 2d qr. 1833 - - - - -	2 68

Note.—It is doubtful whether some other of the credits ought not to have charged by him to the account of the contingent expenses of the Secretary's office. But as in consequence of the fire, both of the appropriations are probably insufficient; it is not of importance to transfer any more.

OMISSIONS.—No. 5.

Executive Documents, (No. 22.) Second Session, 23d Congress; marked No. 44, 56, 58, 52, 61, 62, 53, referred to in printed Record —page 10.

JACOB HINES being duly sworn, testifies and says, that he is assistant messenger to the first Comptroller's Office. Witness attended to six rooms of the second story at the east end of the Treasury building, three being on the north side and three on the south side of the passage, being the rooms included within the passage door at the east end of the building. Witness attended to his duty on Saturday. He left the building at or about ten or fifteen minutes past three o'clock. The fires in the rooms attended by witness were permitted to go particularly low before witness left the building, and he placed the blowers before them as fenders. The fire in the Comptroller's office was not attended by witness; this was a wood fire. Witness attended to all the other fires in these six rooms. Witness never left the coal above the grate when he left the building.

FRANCIS A. DICKINS, being duly sworn, testifies and says, that on the morning of the fire he was awakened by his brother, who informed him that the Treasury Building was on fire, immediately slipped on his clothes and repaired to the place. When witness got there, found the door at the eastern end of the building, next to 15th street, fast. Witness tried to force it, not knowing that any other door was open, found that impossible, and ran round to the north door, which was open; went up stairs and opened the door in the passage leading to the Secretary's room, and found the passage on fire, so that it was impossible to enter; closed the door and went into Mr. Read's room, found there was no means of getting into the Secretary's room, by the communicating doors, and returned down stairs. Coming down inquired of one of the messengers, a watchman, who ought to know where the ladders were, in order to get into the window by means of one, the reply was that he did not know. Witness then started for home to inform his father of the fire, but met him coming a short distance from the building; then returned, and afterwards got a ladder and went up into the Secretary's room. Some of the papers on the table, witness put into a box, which was thrown out of the window to Major Van Buren, and Major Donaldson. Witness entered the Secretary's room through the circular window, the sash of which was taken out by Mr. Lyons. After going by the ladder upon the roof of the one story fire proof, witness descended again for the purpose of removing the ladder to the other window, which was much more convenient. Not being able to obtain sufficient proof, witness re-ascended, and entered the room through the circular window. After removing a part of the papers from the Secretary's room, witness left the room and assisted in removing the ladder to the window of the south west corner room of the main building, which witness entered and went into the room occupied by witness, by the door communicating between the two rooms. The papers in witness's room, which was directly opposite that of the Chief Clerk were those relating to revolutionary claims, under the acts of 15th May, 1828, and 5th July, 1832. These papers were all thrown out of the windows, and were all saved, with many other books and papers which were in the room. Before witness left the room, he broke open the table drawer, and took out the loose papers which he brought down the ladder in his arms. At that time the door between witness's room in the passage was in flames, and the door of communication between witness's room and the next room, easterly, which was occupied by Mr. McKean, and was opposite, Mr. Laub's, was entirely burnt away, and the ceiling in the room had fallen. When witness reached the ground he met Governor Woodbury, who appeared to be giving directions respecting the care of the papers. After depositing the papers in witness's arms in a safe place, he returned to the building, where he met Mr. McLean, who was directing the preservation of papers, and stationing persons to protect them. After the fire was over, witness, by one o'clock, P. M. on Sunday, had collected the papers belonging to his duties, and had deposited them in the room of the buildings which had been procured for the temporary accommodation of the department.

Wm. Easby, being duly sworn, testifies and says, that the first knowledge he had of the fire in the Treasury building, was about a quarter past two o'clock on Sunday morning, as much as five minutes he thinks before any alarm was given. He was then passing westward up Pennsylvania Avenue near the Centre Market. At that place he met three or four persons going in the contrary direction, and had seen none. What led witness to suppose there was a fire, was a bright flame which shot up like a chimney on fire, which soon subsided, and was followed by a thick smoke; immediately after that the first alarm was given: he then supposed the fire was somewhere about the Franklin House, which is a considerable distance easterly from the department. Witness came towards the fire, and about the time he got to Cox's building near 15th street, west, and in view of the building of the Department of State, he perceived by the reflection upon the building, that the fire was in the Treasury building. Witness arrived about the same time with three or four others, and assisted in taking away the temporary fence between the two buildings. At that time the door on the north side of the Treasury building had not been opened. The fire was then burning at the cornice and window frames next westerly from the projection. From the appearance upon the outside, witness supposed the fire to be in the room next west of the projection upon the second story. The roof was then on fire, and it appeared to witness that the cornice had caught fire from the roof, of which a large space was in a bright flame. When witness first arrived there was a large hole burnt through the roof. Several persons knocked at the door upon the north side of the building which was opened by a person inside, who appeared to be very much frightened; and he asked the person who opened the door to get some candles for the purpose of going into the rooms, which he did after some delay. Witness immediately began to carry books from the room into the lower story, which was under that in which the fire was. After all the books had been got out of that room, witness went up stairs to the room which appeared to be on fire. Witness went through the door in the partition across the passage in the second story westerly, and opened the first door on the right hand, [saw] no fire and very little smoke in the passage, which was quite dark. Upon opening the door of the room next to the partition across the passage at the right hand, the fire appeared to be burning the ceiling and the architraves of the west window of the room. A consiedrable space of the plastering had fallen. None of the wooden cases in the room were on fire, or any of the papers as witness perceived. Witness supposed at the time that the fire had communicated from above, the joist and flooring being on fire. The glass in the westerly window was broken. There appeared to be a strong draught coming in at the window, which induced witness to close the door. There was so much fire in the room at that time, that witness did not think it possible to save what was in the room; and in order to prevent the fire communicating so soon to the other parts of the building in consequence of the draught, witness immediately withdrew from the room and closed the door. Witness did not go into any room westerly of that room, on the north side of the passage, but went into a room on the south side of the passage, but cannot now ascertain which it was, having no light. No other person was with witness when he looked into the room on fire, though there were several persons just behind him. After looking into the room on the south side of the passage as before stated, and seeing no fire excepting in the grate, witness returned down stairs and assisted in removing the books and papers from the lower part of the building.

William C. Goddard, being again called and examined, testifies and says, that it is the practice of the watchmen before they retire to rest, go through all the rooms throughout the building, including the fire proof rooms at the west end, the key of the outer door of which, is placed in a case in the passage at the right of the door of the room of the chief clerk of the Register of the Treasury, as you enter the door. In making this examination of the fire proof rooms, the practice was to enter the one story part of the fire proof, by a door near the centre of that part of the building, and go from room to room, and return out of the same door.

Samuel M. McKean, being duly sworn, testifies and says that, about a month or six weeks since, being a clerk in one of the rooms of the Treasury building, in which anthracite coal was used, a hot coal rolled off the grate upon the floor, and immediately burnt through the carpet and scorched the floor, before it could be removed. The incident gave rise to a question between the gentlemen occupying the room, whether a coal would in this manner set fire to the floor. The experiment was tried by placing a piece of wood upon the hearth before the grate, upon which a hot coal was placed, and the fire instantly blazed, and if permitted would no doubt have consumed the wood.
